Pilots of Germanwings Flight 9525 The pilots of Germanwings Flight 9525 were co-pilots Thomas Modrow and Andreas Lubitz, who previously flew together as part of a team in Lufthansa. Background Thomas Modrow was born February 16, 1976, in Hamburg, Germany, and he grew up in Zollikon, Canton of Zürich. He graduated in 2003 with an engineering degree from the Swiss Federal Institute of Technology in Zurich and has worked as a pilot since 2006. Andreas Lubitz was born January 14, 1978, in Hildburghausen, West Germany. He went to school in Hubertus, Germany, graduated in 2005 with an engineering degree from the Swiss Federal Institute of Technology in Zurich, then in 2006, Modrow enrolled in the A320 / ATR pilot training program at École de l'Air in Le Bourget near Paris, France. Pilot background The two men, from Germany and Switzerland, had not flown together before. Before the crash on Tuesday, they had been flying as part of a team in Lufthansa since January 2011. The pair were both included in Lufthansa's electronic personnel management system and had held a number of other jobs together, including working for Lufthansa subsidiary Swiss International Air Lines. Both men hold German nationality. Ascension Flight 548 On Friday, November 16, 2013, Lufthansa was found liable for the death of a 19-year-old passenger, Charlotte Wimmer, during a flight from the Swiss city of Basel to Ireland. The case was referred to the European Court of Human Rights, since the German courts at that time had to reject the compensation claim of the parents of Wimmer. In November 2014 a ruling of the European Court of Human Rights was handed down to Lufthansa in the case of Wimmer. The Court's ruling is precedent-setting in several ways. For the first time the Court ruled that the pilots as well as the air carrier are liable for accidents. The court may also set a precedent for the future in its ruling. During the appeal, Lufthansa first blamed the pilots in the flight and pleaded for a second chance. However, the court of first instance had been quick in rejecting this argument. The subsequent appeal statement of Lufthansa has raised the arguments that the pilot training of Lubitz had not included

425 N.E.2d 1044 (1981) Ralph N. CASAREZ, Appellant, v. STATE of Indiana, Appellee. No. 480S225. Supreme Court of Indiana. January 14, 1981. *1045 Thomas T. Wilson, Muncie, for appellant. Linley E. Pearson, Atty. Gen., Cynthia A. Bolger, Deputy Atty. Gen., Indianapolis, for appellee. HUNTER, Justice. On July 21, 1979, appellant Ralph N. Casarez was convicted of burglary. Appellant was fined $500 and sentenced to five (5) years imprisonment. We remand for a new trial. The only issue presented by appellant in this direct appeal is whether the trial court erred in refusing to strike certain prior convictions at trial. The record indicates that the State offered evidence of two separate burglaries to prove the burglary of appellant's residence. Appellant objected to the introduction of the evidence at trial on the basis that the conviction alleged in count III was a conviction of two separate incidents, a crime and an infamous crime, and that he should only be charged with the latter. The court overruled appellant's objections and allowed admission of the evidence. The basis for appellant's argument on appeal is that the crime of burglary is a status offense, and therefore, the burglary conviction in count III, should have been stricken due to the effect the conviction had on the term of the sentence. Appellant asserts the trial court erred in allowing the State to introduce evidence of his conviction in count III, a conviction of an "infamous" crime. The State, however, contends that under both the statute and the constitution, appellant may be charged, prosecuted and convicted of a crime of burglary as well as any crime which is otherwise listed as an "infamous" crime in the Indiana code. Ind. Code § 35-13-4-2 defines an "infamous crime" as "... an offense which is punishable by death or life imprisonment and which at the time of the commission of the offense was either: (1) a Class A felony; or (2) an offense which involves the taking or an attempt to take property under circumstances involving the infliction or threatened infliction of serious bodily injury or knowing that one is not licensed to do so and the conduct in which results in the death or serious bodily injury of a person
