The official product description for the Star Control 2 engine is as follows: Star Control 2 is a stellar adventure in which you command a starship to explore the universe. You will find other people to interact with, explore worlds, complete objectives, trade, fight for control of a station, or defend your ship from enemy attack. It was one of the first realtime 3D games on the PC, and was used to demonstrate the graphics technology of the 80s. It was a stunning game for its time, and had the potential to be the next DOOM for the next generation of gamers. If you loved Star Trek and Star Wars, this is the game for you. Manage the starships on your journey by responding to events and objects in the universe. Evaluate the actions of your enemies. Determine your strategy by studying the properties of objects in the universe. Use your ship's weapons wisely to defeat your enemies. What makes this different from a classic adventure game is that you will be interacting with objects and people in the universe. Do you want to be alone on the voyage of your life? Of course not. Would you like to play a game where you can learn the language of the universe? Of course not. Tons of weapons and aliens and exploding space stations and human-shaped space stations and space stations with gigantic lasers and space stations with pinball machines? No way! Star Control 2 was a landmark game in the history of computers. It was a classic game at the time, but if it had been published today, it would be hailed as the next DOOM. Come on over and check out the ship's logbook, read the interview with the artist and then get out there and explore the universe. The latest news and reviews on Adobe After Effects CS6.
