An Adobe Photoshop tutorial is a good way to learn how to use a feature or workflow, but be aware that what works in one tutorial might not work in another. Also, never rely on an online tutorial as the single source of knowledge about a technology. If you're unfamiliar with the program, I recommend that you read an overview of Photoshop and get to work using Photoshop for a bit. The following example shows the Organizer window, where you have the following items: ▲ The light-green layer 1. This layer is filled with a 30 percent gray tone. * * * Image courtesy of Wikimedia Commons * * * ▲ The layer mask 1. This layer has the same color fill and is transparent. * * * Image courtesy of Wikimedia Commons * * * ▲ The original image. Figure 1-17 shows the result after you apply the Smart Filter effect. The Smart Filter effect adds a black overlay and randomly crops any area of the layer that is transparent or semitransparent. This will leave a solid color (such as white or red) where transparency is present in the original image. Figure 1-17: Smart Filter randomly crops and replaces parts of the original with another solid color. Your results can be entirely random, or you can specify more precisely what areas are to be replaced. The Polygonal Lasso tool (L) and Magic Wand (M) are commonly used when this type of crop is desired, but you can use any selection tool you like. To see more of the Organizer window, here's the dialog box with a few options you can select and the window view you see in Figure 1-17. Figure 1-18 shows the Effects window, where you can find many options for applying filters, in the following order: * ▼ Effects window menu, Plug-Ins, Custom Controls. Click the effect you want to apply. The Effects window with the filter option selected is shown in Figure 1-19. You can click and drag the various text fields to set the filter settings, as shown in Figure 1-20. * * * Image courtesy of Wikimedia Commons * * * The following list shows some common Photoshop filters that you can find in the Effects window. For a complete list of effects you can find in the Effects window, see the related sidebar, "The Effects

Z Close the image, and keep the changes you made, or go back one step with the Undo button. Your Photoshop Keyboard Shortcuts The following shortcuts will come in very handy. SHIFT Hold down the SHIFT key, and press a letter key to increase the letter case to Capital letters. ALT Hold down the ALT key, and press a letter key to increase the letter case to Capital letters. CTRL Hold down the CTRL key, and press a letter key to increase the letter case to Capital letters. Command Hold down the COMMAND key, and press a letter key to increase the letter case to Capital letters. The key shortcuts in Photoshop Elements are slightly different. SHIFT Hold down the SHIFT key, and press a letter key to lower the letter case to Small letters. ALT Hold down the ALT key, and press a letter key to lower the letter case to Small letters. 1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a piezoelectric ultrasonic motor, which converts ultrasonic vibrations generated by applying an electric power to a piezoelectric element into a driving force to generate a rotary motion, and more specifically, to a structure that can obtain the preferable characteristics in high-speed rotation and fast response. 2. Description of the Related Art Ultrasonic motors that generate a rotary motion using ultrasonic vibrations generated by applying an electric power to a piezoelectric element are attracting attention as a motor that can be reduced in size, weight, and cost, and further, is superior in quietness. The ultrasonic motors have been used in small apparatuses and as driving units in mechanical devices, such as printers and information apparatus. For example, in Japanese Patent Application Laid-open No. 2000-288417, there is disclosed an apparatus that includes a piezoelectric actuator. The piezoelectric actuator includes a piezoelectric element that is linearly polarized or excited. There is disclosed a piezoelectric motor in which an actuator is mounted between a base and a plate in Japanese Patent Application Laid-open No. 2000-56657, and the actuator includes a piezoelectric element that is linearly polarized or excited. The piezoelectric element is interposed between a vibration plate and the base. The plate is fixed to the base by a screw or the like. There is disclosed a piezoelectric motor in which an actuator includes a piezoelectric element that is linearly polarized or excited, and a base includes a vibrating plate provided with a piezoelectric element fixed to the base. The plate is fixed to the base by screw or the like in Japanese Patent Application Laid-open No. 2000-188508. There is disclosed a piezoelectric motor in which an actuator includes a piezoelectric element that is linearly polarized or excited, and a base includes a vibrating plate that is fixed to the base by screw or the like in Japanese Patent Application Laid-open No. Hei 7-128947. The conventional ultrasonic motors can be reduced in size and weight in comparison with conventional DC motors, and can start rotation from zero. Hence, the ultrasonic motors can be used as a drive source in low-speed

1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to cosmetic compositions and more particularly relates to cosmetic compositions which when applied to the hair yield a glittering appearance. 2. Description of the Prior Art The cosmetic art has used seeding materials for the provision of the desired glittering appearance. Typically, glittering materials have been formed on the hair by providing a small particle of a glittering material which has been pressed against the hair to provide the desired appearance. This process has the disadvantage that the glittering particle is applied to the hair during styling. This can be somewhat of a nuisance. More recently, titanium dioxide, a bright white material which has been used for coating fabrics has been employed as a glittering material. Generally, in order to achieve the desired appearance, titanium dioxide is applied in a fine powder form. However, the fine powder allows the titanium dioxide to move to other areas of the hair. Further, the fine powder is difficult to work with when being distributed onto the hair. A hair treatment composition containing titanium dioxide is disclosed in U.S. Pat. No. 4,734,278. The composition is formulated with a hydrocarbon material and a wetting agent to provide a glittering hair treatment composition. The titanium dioxide is present in an effective amount for imparting a glittering appearance to the hair. However, the coating of the hair is generally opaque and the coating does not permit the hair to be dyed. Also, the titanium dioxide is diffused into the hair. U.S. Pat. No. 4,926,822 discloses a cosmetic treatment composition which comprises titanium dioxide and a conditioning agent. The conditioning agent can be an oil or water soluble organic surfactant. The titanium dioxide is provided in a small particle form. There is no disclosure of a surface treated titanium dioxide. U.S. Pat. No. 3,901,855 discloses a glistening mixture which is applied in hair and a brushing action is utilized to provide a flow of the mixture onto the hair. The mixture includes titanium dioxide and a matrix material. The matrix material is selected from the group consisting of mica, cellulose, asbestos, styrene-butadiene copolymer, polyacrylate and the like. U.S. Pat. No. 4,540,505 discloses a hair treatment composition and method for the application of the composition. The composition contains titanium dioxide, inorganic oils, an organic solvent and water. The titanium dioxide can
