UDP-glucose-6-dehydrogenase (UDPG6DH) catalyzes the last step in the biosynthesis of cell wall polysaccharides and phospholipids. A Ca(2+)-regulated bidirectional feedback control on the gene expression of the UDPG6DH in Saccharomyces cerevisiae has been described. This feedback control is mediated by three cis-acting elements in the 5'-upstream region of the gene. The responsible elements are found in a tandem repeat separated by 35 bp and, within each repeat, in two different positions. A minimal operator sequence was identified between the two elements of the two repeats. The transcription from the last of these is mediated by a 'cap' region and is insensitive to glucose. The transcription from the other region is inhibited by glucose and therefore is initiated in high glucose concentrations.1.
