Compete against your friends in the global ranking system, or test your car's performance! The UK is most commonly known for a high-speed railway network in England, Wales and Scotland, but what many people don't know about the UK is its world-renowned football prowess. The second most popular sport in the country after rugby, football has been a part of the UK's sporting landscape since the late 19th century. Although many countries have a national football team, the UK boasts England, who are top-tier of the European Football League, as well as Northern Ireland, Scotland and Wales. Football's popularity was evident at the 2016 Olympic Games in Rio, where the host nation, the UK, became the first country to win gold medals in football. Players from the men's and women's teams won gold medals in archery, canoeing, boxing, equestrian, lawn bowls, sailing and taekwondo. Football isn't the only sport that the UK excels in. From flat racing, nordic combined to skating, the UK has been a contender in all of them. England is probably the most well-known when it comes to flat racing, as it saw favourites such as Chetwynd, Lake of Stars and Desert Prince finish second at the Sandown Gold Cup on Saturday. The 2019 edition of the race attracted a record 160,000 spectators, as some of the best horses in the world competed in the race. While the UK has been known to be a top contender for hockey and cricket, its Olympians in badminton have shown that it's also no slouch at the sport either. Kiradech Aphibarnrat won the mixed team gold medal at the 2016 Rio games, while the women's team won the silver medal in both 2016 and 2012. Cricket is another sport in which the UK has excelled at in the past, with Englishman Ian
