satisfied. Sleeping Sickness Causes and symptoms of sleeping sickness include a range of nonspecific flu-like symptoms, which include chills, fever, headache, muscle aches, malaise, myalgia, and night sweats. The disease is a serious parasitic illness that is generally fatal. There is no effective drug for the treatment of sleeping sickness, but the symptoms can be treated with good nutrition, fluids, and bed rest. Symptoms include a decline in appetite, loss of weight, fever, listlessness, and weakness. The malarial parasite, which has been transmitted through mosquitoes, usually first enters the body when the person is c6a93da74d
