Use of a laryngeal mask airway for accidental tracheal extubation during long term mechanical ventilation in a patient with tetralogy of Fallot. A patient with tetralogy of Fallot who required mechanical ventilation for 2 days developed airway blockage which was treated successfully with a laryngeal mask airway. The patient was extubated after the blockage receded and after 4 days of ventilation with the laryngeal mask, the patient resumed spontaneous respiration. The use of a laryngeal mask airway as an alternative to tracheal intubation when the oro-pharynx is obstructed is discussed.The BBC has apologised to the co-writer of the series about the life of St Paul after he raised concerns about historical accuracy. BBC chiefs faced the humiliation of having to suspend the series so that the actor playing the saint could be re-cast after Ian McNeice raised objections to the episode in which Paul encountered a "witch". McNeice said that, in the episode, it seemed more likely that Paul would become a member of the Roman Catholic church than that he would become a

Different treatment modalities for mandibular fractures, adapted to the site of fracture, the importance and the means of preserving the mandible, and the high incidence of post-traumatic complications have been presented in this study. In the case of a standardized treatment strategy, the possibility of restoring the mandible and the quality of the occlusion post-traumatic are examined. It is suggested that the treatment of mandibular fractures should be carried out as soon as possible in a simple and functional way. As the increasing mortality rate in the aged (elderly), a better patient selection is necessary and the treatment option should be thoroughly discussed
