HyperMotion Technology is a pivotal facet of FIFA 22. It unlocks many new and deeper animation features as well as bring the gameplay closer to the real thing. One of the most visible features of HyperMotion Technology are the almost fully motion-capture-based animations, such as defender flops and diving headers. These animations are more accessible and realistic than before, thanks to highly accurate tracking and post-processing effects that mimic physicality and authenticity. Each animation is unique to the player and attuned to the player's style and position on the field. For example, a player might perform a diving header while you play a defensive role at the edge of the box. Another player might dive when trying to make a key pass, while another might dive because they are exhausted or stifled by the defense. Each situation is unique to the player, and the animation is unique to the player as well. Furthermore, the team AI has been updated to better anticipate and react to player's movements, combined with improving simulation of pressure and support from teammates. "In FIFA 21, our gameplay stood apart from reality," said Johan Michels, Executive Producer, FIFA. "The unique animations found in FIFA 22 represent a step further in that realism." FIFA 22 introduces HyperMotion Technology. HyperMotion Technology debuted in FIFA 19 as a new technology that unlocks the next generation of performance and visuals for key player animations. This year, the further development of the technology has led to the creation of a new feature: HyperMotion FX, which creates even more realistic motion-capture animations of key player behaviors from a complete football match. HyperMotion FX employs motion capture data from a team of 22 elite players from the top leagues around the world who played a complete, high-intensity match in a motion capture suit in preparation for the FIFA development process. The technical team, along with a team of designers, spent several months to ensure that the recorded motion capture data accurately represented the players' style and on-field positioning. Motion capture data is processed to create the animation of each player, with post-processing effects applied to recreate the realism of the player's movements. These high-performance data and post-processing create animations that look and feel like the players' high-fidelity animations in real life. The collection and processing of data for HyperMotion technology is a key component of EA SPORTS'

Fifa 22 Features Key:

- Revolution in 360-degree dribbling - Player Dribbling keeps track of where you're heading, and makes it easy for you to change direction. You can even brush the ball on your wall, and see the high-speed trajectory of your wall-ball. You can use your run or a long shot to beat your marker. You will also notice that the ball will slow down when the ball touches the sky or the ground.
- Power dribbles - Boost your skills in the blink of an eye. Using a short pass, a powerful dribble takes you down the field or to a scoring opportunity.
- Superior control - Controlling the ball is improved with realistic over-the-shoulder interactions. The ball now remains heavy when the player controls it on the ground, and extra weight will be added to the ball when air interactions occur. To accustom yourself to these changes, it is recommended that you start a new Career with the ball in your hands.
- Stunning graphics - New animation models and particle effects make the PlayStation4 graphics look even more realistic. FIFA 22 takes place across the globe at incredible high resolution using a six-camera array and an all new lighting engine, resulting in a new look and feel for the whole experience.
- Define your style - Style your whole look. FIFA 22 does away with the current Fifa kit templates. You can choose from five colour palettes for players, shirts, shorts and socks, plus a selection of lace patterns on players' boots. And the Nike signature effects that are currently used in-game can now be customized in more ways than ever, with over a thousand new player and team signatures being included in FIFA 22. Every signature looks absolutely perfect, from metallic gold to metallic red. The new Tracing feature displays the exact position of the players' jockstraps and gear, so you can place your geometrical headgear precisely.
- Turn your training sessions into competitions with FIFA Ultimate Team - Ultimate Team now features Locks and Triggers, allowing you to change the rules of the game - everything from scoring, attacking, and viewing tactics.
