Insulin-like growth factor-I and local immunity in the cornea. Mammalian cells are frequently stimulated by the presence of serum factors, and the effect of insulin-like growth factor (IGF)-I on corneal cells in vitro was investigated. A rapid stimulation of corneal fibroblast proliferation was observed, and IGF-I was able to enhance the proliferative response to serum (10%). This effect could be demonstrated either when two-dimensional cultures were used or in spinner flask cultures. This increase in cell number was accompanied by a rapid accumulation of cells in G1 of the cell cycle. In addition, corneal epithelium 6d1f23a050
