On the host, you will need to download an executable file that adds cheat support for the client. Using the fact that $\liminf_{n \rightarrow \infty} \frac{1}{n} \log(\sqrt{2}^n) = \frac{1}{2}$, we have $h \leq \frac{1}{2}$. Applying the concavity of f gives $\liminf_{n \rightarrow \infty} \frac{1}{n} f(e^x) \geq f(1) = \frac{1}{2}$, giving the result. What's new:

(TV channel) The Spike (stylized as THE SPIKE) is an Australian pay television channel owned by Nine Network that features programming related to television, film and action entertainment. Its logo shows a large sticker. The channel's name is a reference to a large variety of cable television channels, (which viewers associate with "sapphirestickers") mainly showing movies and series and not programming focused around a particular type of programming, such as terrestrial TV channels on analogue and digital TV. The Spike originally launched on 17 November 2005 on Foxtel as a specialty cable channel and the channel is currently available for free on Foxtel Go. It moved to ABC on 31 July 2007. History Foxtel The show was originally the first exclusive-entitlement channel on the cable entertainment platform Foxtel by Foxtel for Australian pay television subscribers and launched as part of a new separate channel line-up, with the other channels being made available to Foxtel subscribers in 2008. The first 10 programs produced for the channel were provided by Endemol Australia. It was one of five new Foxtel channels launched in August 2005. The channel features several times a week live programming from popular networks in the United States such as Comedy Central and MTV, as well as some television programs from the channel's broadcast partners. New episodes are released daily at 5pm AEST. Since the channel launched on 17 November 2005, The Spike has been the first Foxtel channel to air outside of the United States and United Kingdom channels. It has been available free-to-air on Foxtel TV Australia since 3 May 2007, but did not join the free-to-air channel group until August 2007. In February 2007, the Television and Radio Review Tribunal ruled that the Spike's editorial content was insufficiently "pinched to give it an editorial edge". The decision meant that Foxtel subscribers were not able to view The Spike's content on television. Instead, they had to view the channel by viewing its website. Australian-produced programs to air on The Spike include GamePlan, Oz Country, 360 Entertainment, VideoBox, Toasted TV, The Frontline Club, Gadgets & Gizmos and The Manager's Lounge. At the same time as the channel launch, Foxtel also announced an investment of $9 million in the channel's construction, as well as an increase in the channel's number of programs.
